Overview

Do you love to work with people and want career options in your future? Do you hope to make a difference in the world? Supporting people living with a disability, such as Autism or Down Syndrome, is a great way to do just that.

Confederation College's Developmental Services Worker program will give you the skills and experience you need to support individuals in living their life to the fullest. Coursework includes study in developmental disabilities, teaching strategies, health promotion, augmentative communication and assistive technology, pharmacology, dual diagnosis, trends and issues, behavioural supports, counselling skills and community development. If you believe in inclusion, individualization and empowerment for all people in our community, this program is for you!

Top Highlights

- Program includes two field placements so that you can learn in real-world environments
- Gives you the knowledge and skills that you need to support people to reach their full potential
- Practice knowledge and skills in a lab setting and plan real community events with schools and agencies
- Also offered as an accelerated program for those with a college diploma in a community services program or those with a degree in a related field
